From the Elementary Office

by Beverly Deis
Elem. Principal

The elementary is celebrating because some warm days in February quickly melted the snow away and we are outside for recess again! I sure hope parents are sending adequate clothing and footwear for outside.

I attended the Caldwell County Spelling Bee on February 17 and I was so proud of the representatives from Polo. The four boys representing Polo, Brandon Hubbard, Tristan Rardon, Matthew Vaughan, and Jesse Vaughan, did an awesome job! Tristan Rardon received first place and will attend the Regional Spelling Bee in St. Joseph on March 12.

The Polo MAP Parent Involvement Day is set for Monday, March 7. Teachers in grades 3-6 will have more information about this day. The MAP tests will begin April 6, 2011 for grade 5 and will begin the next week for grades 3, 4, and 6.

The character education word for March is "perseverance." Perseverance means to keep trying and to not give up or to be persistent in a course of action. Teachers and the counselor, Mrs. Arway, will be focusing on perseverance in the classroom and we ask for your assistance in teaching the students the importance of the character education words. I have no doubt; students who persevere will be more productive and successful in school, especially on the MAP and Stanford Tests.

Thank you to numerous parents who helped Polo Elementary reach their goal in receiving "Time for Kids" for the 2011-2012 school year. Students received a "duck" and other prizes when they turned in their completed booklet, which seemed to be a terrific incentive for the students.

March 21 is McTeacher Night at the Excelsior Springs McDonald's. Please come and support our teachers and our school between 4:00 and 8:00 pm.

The PTO book fair was a success. The "carnival" theme was well represented with the decorated bulletin boards, clown day, and family night. Thanks to all PTO members (and staff members) who helped make this a huge success for our school.

Just a reminder - mark your calendars now for the upcoming Spring MAP tests to begin in April. Be sure to talk with individual teachers on date and time specifics. These tests are just one way our students show "Panther Pride in Excellence and Performance."

It is that time of year when we are rounding up all of the 2011-2012 Kindergarten Students. If you have a child who will be five before August 1, 2011 please call the school so we have his/her information. Kindergarten screening will be conducted on March 29 and 31, 2011.

FFA Week

by Alex Templeton
Staff Writer

February 19 through 26 was FFA Week all around the country. The Polo FFA Chapter participated this by having a week dedicated to agriculture. There was no school on Monday to celebrate President's Day, but the FFA members went to Chillicothe to eat Chinese food and go bowling for the annual Winter Activity. Through the rest of the week, all of the students were encouraged to participate in the dress up days planned for FFA Week. Tuesday was Camo Day, Wednesday was Hick Day, Thursday was Tractor Apparel/Drive your tractor to school day, and Friday was supposed to be Official Dress day and the Teacher Appreciation breakfast. Due to inclement weather, school was canceled Friday, so the Teacher Appreciation breakfast was held on Tuesday, March 1. All of the officers came into the school early in the morning and cooked pancakes, eggs, sausage, bacon and biscuits and gravy for all of the teachers, staff members, and the school board members. Vice-President Carlie Powers said "it was a great turnout and a great way to say thank you to all of the teachers and staff members who support the FFA."

Reading Tips from 2nd Grade Moms

by Mrs. Esry
Teacher

It's Friday, February 25th and I'm writing this article from my home because it is yet ANOTHER snow day! But spring will come! And with spring comes testing time. We always ask ourselves what can we, as teachers and you, as parents do to prepare the children for testing. For me, it always comes back to my number 1 goal: making them a strong reader EVERYDAY, not just on testing days. I am currently working with a wonderful group of 2nd grade readers in my morning reading group this year who are all reading at or above reading level. I would love to tell you this is all my doing but I know better. This is a result of things our Polo parents are doing at home. So I sent out a survey asking my top readers parents "What tips do you have for other parents in the district to help their child become a better reader." Seven mothers and one dad responded, here are their tips, which I thought were fabulous!

Reading Tips From Polo Parents

#1 From Michelle Martin, mom of Maggie Martin

"I take turns reading pages with Maggie." When you read to your child and with your child, you model good reading so your child knows how they should sound and will try to imitate you. It's the same as in sports. In basketball a coach shows a child how to shoot, dribble and pass a ball correctly. Show your child how to read!

#2 Tracey Harris, mom of Sara Harris

"My kids have to read in order to play video games or play on the laptop. We also reward them for reading so many minutes a day or week." Not too many of our kids are going to grow up to be video game designers but they all need to be able to read to survive in life. We have to keep a balance! Good idea, Tracey.

#3 From Terri Foster, mother of Ashley Foster

"Keep a wide variety of reading materials on hand. Have your young readers sit beside you as they read. Use your index finger to track each word as they read." This is important because kids think the faster they read the better they are, but they make a lot of mistakes and skip words while rushing, which lowers their ability to comprehend what they are reading. You try omitting words from what you are reading and see if you understand it. Ask questions about the story your child is reading aloud to you to see if they are comprehending it. Help your child understand that reading isn't just saying the words correctly, it's understanding what you read, too.

#4 From Heather Clevenger, mom of Mallory Clevenger

"We go to the library together and pick out books that we read together." A child, just like an adult, is more likely to read something they are interested in that they have picked out themselves than something they don't enjoy. I have this boy in my class who for the first semester I struggled to get him to read during silent reading time, He would yell out "Books are Boring!" Then we read an article about the moon in our Time For Kids Magazine (a free educational magazine, similar to Weekly Reader. It is free to our district because parents take the time to fill in addresses on those little books that are sent home and probably drive you crazy, but the weekly magazine is a great teaching tool on current events and gives a variety of reading material to our students at Polo, something Terri Foster pointed out that really helped Ashley.) Anyway this boy in my class loved learning about the moon so I pulled out all my space books for him and now he is constantly up at my desk quizzing me over space trivia he has just read, reading is NOT boring to him anymore!

#5 From Wendy and Howard Wolf, parents of Arianna Wolf

"As part of the bedtime routine we read before bed. We started reading to our kids at birth. We have the kids follow along with their finger as we read. We read the same book over and over for repetition. When they start to recognize words we let them read the words." Making reading part of the bedtime routine ensures that it is done every night!

#6 From Sarah Cooper, mother of Lilly Cooper

"Try to have 30 minutes of QUIET time a night for reading. Make sure the TV and radio are off." Keeping distractions to a minimum will help with comprehension.

#7 From Jennifer Boydston, mother of Brooke Boydston

"Introduce reading at an early age, and make it a priority everyday! Lead by example, when a parent shows an interest in reading for fun, then the child will likely have an interest as well." Right on Jennifer! Your child looks up to you, they imitate you. If all you do is watch TV then that is probably what your child will pick to do in their spare time too. But if you are reading at night, then your child will think that is the thing to do too. Reading is no different than sports, the more you practice sports the better you get. The more your child reads the better he or she will be. If we want our children to shine in baseball we work extra with them. We play catch at night. Are we doing the same for reading? Are we putting out that extra effort?

I also believe you need to be your child's own personal reading cheerleader. Just as you would yell for them in a game and cheer them on. You should cheer them on in reading. You should say things like: "Wow, that was a big word you just sounded out, that was terrific!" or "You just read that whole book, You're awesome!" "You're going to be the best reader ever!"

I want to thank these parents for writing down these tips. Keep up the good work, it shows in your child's reading success!

Counseling Corner

Elementary Counseling News

Throughout the month of February, the students focused on the Character Word of the Month, Honesty. During classroom guidance lessons, students discussed what the word honesty means to them and the importance of being honest. Students in grades K-2 listened to the story, The Boy Who Cried Wolf, and talked about the importance of always telling the truth and being honest. They shared examples of times when they were truthful by being honest. Students in grades 3-6 also discussed what the definition of honesty means to them. Students completed a self-reflection activity which allowed them to reflect on what honesty means to them. During their classroom guidance lesson, the students also learned how to be tactful when being honest with others. Displaying tactful responses allows the students to be honest with others, but encourages them to take into consideration others thoughts and feelings. All of the students in grades K-6 were challenged to always to be honest with others and strive to be a Kid with Character!

In addition to learning about Honesty, students in grades 3-6 explored the world of work. The students in grades 3 and 4 were introduced to the 6 career paths. Careers paths are general categories which help to gain an understanding of the various types of career options throughout the world. The 6 Career Paths are helping, fixing & building, health, nature, creative, and business. Students had an opportunity to draw a picture of what they wanted to be when they grow up and work with partners to determine which career path and necessary skills needed to be successful in their future career. At the end of the lesson, students shared their responses with the class. Students in grades 5 and 6 explored the many careers needed to develop, manufacture, and distribute a bag of Tootsie Rolls. Students brainstormed all of the jobs which helped to get the Tootsie Rolls from the very first steps of production to when it finally arrives on the shelf in a store. After identifying the various careers, the students identified which Career Path and Career Cluster the job related to. Throughout the career activities, students were encouraged to begin thinking about the skills and interests they have and the type of jobs or careers they would want to do when they grow up!

High School Counseling News

Polo High School will be a test center for the ACT April Test date. Students need to register by March 4th to avoid a late fee. Seniors need to apply for financial aid as soon as possible if they haven't done so already. Seniors also need to be watching deadlines for scholarships. Many local scholarships are due in the months of March and April. Mr. Meyer will post due dates for scholarships in the announcements and on the website Counselor/Scholarship site. Seniors should also be responding to deadlines for housing, accepting financial aid which will include scholarships, and other paper work required by colleges and universities.

Grades 7-11 are working on pre-enrollment as we work to get next year's schedule set. After the schedule for next year is completed and finalized we will do enrollment later this spring and have students bring home their schedules for parents to provide their input and sign for the student to return. Juniors and seniors and sophomores planning to take Tech Prep will be visiting the Tech Center in Excelsior Springs in March to view the programs available at the Tech School. Interested students will fill out an application for enrollment for next year after the tour.

Jump Rope for Heart

by Alex Templeton
Staff Writer

On February 17, Jump Rope for Heart took place in the high school gym. Varsity girl's basketball assistant coach Bridget Zabel took charge of the charity event and made sure it was a success. From 7-8:30 p.m., everyone in the school was invited to come join the fun while raising money and awareness for the American Cancer Association. Overall, $978.74 was raised through fundraising and donations. Approximately 50 elementary students participated in jump roping. Every twenty minutes, prizes such as autographed posters from the boys and girls basketball teams, t-shirts, sweatshirts, and other items were raffled off to those who raised money. "This was the second year for Jump Rope for Heart and I think it was a huge success," said senior basketball captain Nikki Junco. "It really makes me happy that I can do something good for others while having so much fun jump roping!" Hopefully, there will be more charity events at the Polo School in the near future so the students can continue to help others in every way they can. Thank you to the Mass Media staff, Athletic Boosters, PTO and anyone else who donated and helped make this year's event a success!

Kindergartners' Celebrate Dr. Seuss' Birthday & "Read Across America" Day

by Sherrie Silvey
Teacher

The Kindergarten classes invited an adult guest to join them on Wed. March 2 to read Dr. Seuss books and enjoy a breakfast snack of muffins and milk. Upon entering the classrooms the students and guest took part in our morning ritual of 15 minutes of reading. The students and parents read from the assortment of Dr. Seuss books that had been placed at the desks. Book reports were then made for the hall bulletin boards, in which they wrote the title and illustrated some of the characters in a particular story.

The group worked on a Dr. Seuss glyph, which had them answer questions centered on the author and his books. Last, the students worked on a "Dr. Seuss Word Family" book in which wrote and read a variety of rhyming words.

Polo Receives 2nd place in District 16 Championship First time in 13 years!

Submitted Article

The Polo Lady Panthers worked hard to get into the District 16 Championship and did for the first time in 13 years. After a very hard fought game they received 2nd Place at the District 16 Championship last Saturday night in Maysville.

In the first round the Lady Panthers took out Albany Tuesday night 61 - 27 with junior, Jonna Stottlemire leading with 14. Thursday night the Panthers defeated Rock Port 56 - 52 in overtime with senior, Maddy Misel leading with 12.

Each game was intense and emotional for the Lady Panthers team as they played with heavy hearts after losing a close friend and fellow basketball player, Kasey Bolling in a car accident last Sunday. The Lady Panthers, coaches, cheerleaders and fans wore shirts in honor of Kasey to each of the contests. Tuesday night the girl's basketball team paid tribute to Kasey's mom, Lisa Bolling, who attended the first game for the Lady Panthers in the District playoffs. After the game, each member of the girls basketball team, managers and coaches gave a single red rose to Lisa.

The Lady Panthers traveled to Maysville Saturday night to compete in the Championship game against Maysville. It was an intense game for the Lady Panthers and after a hard fought battle they were defeated by the Wolverines 54 - 44 with Sammie Jo Copeland leading the Panthers with 10 points. The Lady Panthers had a successful season, something that has not happened in many years at Polo. They brought home 2 trophies, consolation in the Albany Tournament, 4th Place in the Lathrop Tournament and 2nd Place in the District 16 Championship. They ended their season with a winning record as well, with 16 wins and 11 losses another accomplishment that hasn't taken place for many years in Polo. Great season Lady Panthers!!
